

OCEAN & Childhood Need 30-Question Assessment

3 Questions per category (15 for Temperament, 15 for Childhood Lack) to identify Dominant & Secondary Traits. Rate each 1 to 5.

PART 1: BIOLOGICAL TEMPERAMENT (OCEAN AXIS)

Openness (Curiosity & Intellect)

1. I naturally gravitate toward abstract theories, complex philosophical concepts, and creative ideas.
2. I feel a frequent, driving urge to explore new fields of knowledge, artistic expression, or intellectual deep-dives.
3. I prefer deep, unconventional, or speculative discussions over routine, practical everyday topics.

Total:

Conscientiousness (Discipline & Order)

1. I feel an internal compulsion to keep my environment, schedule, and ongoing tasks meticulously organized.
2. When working on goals, I rely on steady, systematic discipline rather than waiting for spontaneous motivation.
3. I am thorough, detail-oriented, and strongly feel a sense of obligation to complete tasks flawlessly.

Total:

Extraversion (Sociability & Drive)

1. I gain energy, excitement, and enthusiasm from social gatherings, busy group settings, and vibrant events.
2. I naturally assert my opinions in conversations and feel comfortable taking the lead in social dynamics.
3. I actively pursue high-stimulation activities, novel social rewards, and outward action over quiet solitary reflection.

Total:

Agreeableness (Harmony & Trust)

1. Maintaining peace, showing empathy, and accommodating others is my default priority, even at personal expense.
2. I naturally give people the benefit of the doubt and find harsh interpersonal conflict deeply uncomfortable.
3. I readily put my own preferences aside to ensure the comfort, well-being, and emotional harmony of the group.

Total:

Neuroticism (Stress Reactivity)

1. I frequently experience sudden spikes of anxiety, physical tension, or intense worry when unexpected problems arise.
2. Minor setbacks, critical feedback, or perceived rejection can easily disrupt my internal peace for extended periods.
3. I find my mind ruminating repeatedly on worst-case scenarios and potential threats, making it hard to relax.

Part 2: Childhood Lacks & Scoring Matrix

PART 2: CHILDHOOD NEED LACKS (NURTURE AXIS)

Attachment Lack (Safety & Nurturing)

1. Growing up, emotional closeness, comfort, or parental presence felt cold, distant, conditional, or unpredictable.
2. In adult relationships, I battle a persistent, underlying fear that the people I rely on will eventually abandon me.
3. I struggle to feel completely safe trusting that others will stay emotionally available when I am in distress.

Total:

Competence Lack (Autonomy & Mastery)

1. Caregivers micromanaged, overprotected, or criticized me in ways that made me doubt my ability to act independently.
2. I frequently battle a lingering fear that I am secretly ill-equipped or incompetent to manage adult responsibilities.
3. I tend to look for external permission, reassurance, or expert guidance before making important life choices.

Total:

Expression Lack (Validating Emotion)

1. In my childhood home, expressing intense emotions (like anger, sorrow, or fear) was shamed, punished, or ignored.
2. As an adult, I habitually numb, suppress, or hide my authentic feelings because showing vulnerability feels dangerous.
3. I worry that being completely honest about my true emotional state will make me an unbearable burden to others.

Total:

Play Lack (Joy & Lightheartedness)

1. I grew up in a rigid, heavy, or adultified environment where lighthearted fun and unstructured play were rare.
2. I find it nearly impossible to relax or engage in leisure without feeling intense guilt that I should be productive.
3. I struggle to act spontaneously or enjoy the present moment without constantly feeling the weight of serious duty.

Total:

Limits Lack (Boundaries & Structure)

1. Caregivers failed to set consistent rules, healthy discipline, or boundaries, leaving me without structured guidance.
2. I struggle with internal self-regulation, staying grounded when frustrated, or sticking to tedious routines.
3. I feel strong internal resistance or resentment whenever external authority figures attempt to impose strict rules on me.

Scoring & Mapping Guidelines

Step 1: Calculate Category Totals (Max 15 points per category)

Sum your scores (1–5) for each 3-question set into the Total box.

- Part 1 (OCEAN): Openness, Conscientiousness, Extraversion, Agreeableness, Neuroticism.
- Part 2 (Lacks): Attachment, Competence, Expression, Play, Limits.

Step 2: Identify Dominant & Secondary Traits

- Your highest category total in each part is your Dominant trait / lack.
- Your second-highest category total in each part is your Secondary trait / lack.

Step 3: Matrix Intersection

Cross-reference your Dominant OCEAN trait with your Dominant Childhood Lack on the 5x5 Matrix to find your primary Behavioral Archetype. Use your Secondary scores to understand your secondary coping pattern!
